

Higher Education Learning Portal (HELP) Terms & Conditions

By choosing to participate as a user of the Higher Education Learning Portal (HELP), you agree to the following terms and conditions, whether you have read the terms and conditions or not. These terms and conditions may be varied from time to time and it is your responsibility to check them, as your use of the HELP system constitutes your ongoing agreement with them. Use of AIPC denotes the Australian Institute of Professional Counsellors and/or Australian Institute of Psychology interchangeably.

Disclaimer

We reserve all rights in regards to the courses, videos, study guides, materials, forums, assessments, laboratories, systems, programs ("the Services and Products") of the AIPC. We reserve the right to change the Services and Products at any time without warning, at our discretion.

Use of the Services and Products along with material on this site is not intended to substitute professional, legal, financial or medical advice. When advice is required we encourage you to seek out a qualified professional.

AIPC does not accept liability or responsibility for any action arising out of information contained on the site or with respect to the use of the Services and Products. You agree to use the site, and all material, Services and Products contained and available through the site, at your own risk and take sole responsibility for the choices you make.

Copyright

All content on the HELP site is property of AIPC and/or its content suppliers (authors and presenters) and is protected by international copyright laws. This includes but is not limited to the Services and Products and other intellectual property. Use of this material in no way denotes ownership of it. You can only use the content for educational purposes in your studies with AIPC and are not permitted to reproduce, replicate, copy or make available the content to others for other purposes.

Site Usage

Your access to the HELP site only gives you the right to access and use the Services and Products and HELP resources. You are not permitted to share your username or password with others. As such you and you alone are responsible for activities that occur under your access details.

Your access does not in any way imply ownership of content - you are not permitted to publicly share any of the Services or Products or HELP resources, including your username and password.

By accessing the HELP site, you agree to participate on the site in a lawful way that is respectful of others. This site is to be used for academic purposes only and is not a forum to voice complaints or criticism of AIPC or its employees. The Student Handbook details processes to lodge a complaint. AIPC reserves the right to refuse or cancel service of users access to the HELP site at its discretion and to remove messages posted by users.

Account and Course Access

Access to content is available to you only during the term of your enrolment as a higher education student with AIPC, via your username and password. If you cancel your studies or fail to renew your enrolment, your username and password will be cancelled and you can no longer access the site.

Content

Content on this site is generally provided by Institute Lecturers and administrative staff. AIPC does its best to review content and its relevance for students prior to publication; however, it may not be reviewed in full. Nonetheless, AIPC will strive to make the highest possible quality of content available to members.

If you have noted any discrepancies, errors, technical faults and/or other problems, please contact your Lecturer.

Cancellation of Access

Any requests for cancellation of access made by students will be processed by AIPC within 5 working days.